MOTIVES DOMINATE METHODS SAYS BISHOP

Final Session of Religious Workers' Institute Here
Closes With Address.

"Tonight I think a good time to recall again that which I preached about in my first conference years ago on the subject, 'The Motive of Evangelism,' applying it to the motive in Sunday school teaching," said Bishop William McDowell of Chicago Tuesday evening in the last session of the Religious Workers' Institute at the Methodist Memorial church.

"And that is that the missionary method must not dominate the missionary motive. In other words, the motive must dominate and always control the method. Otherwise the method becomes the mythical thing—it becomes mechanical."

"The motive must be clearly transparent and pure. But many a motive is pure and transparent and yet it becomes exhausted. So another factor enters in. It must be large—large enough to move in. It must be almost inexhaustible, and I might say that the motive of the Sunday school is a large one—keeping the individual in the school is also a large one. So then every Sunday school teacher and Christian worker and all those who work for the betterment of mankind must have for their motive the life of Jesus."

"We can base our life, our work, on that of Jesus Christ. If you were to ask me if Jesus Christ worked miracles I would say yes. But if you were to ask me what I loved best of His work, I would not say the occasional miracle, but the constant good that He did. I would not want the power to work miracles as He did unless I had the character and the strength that He had."

"Jesus Christ went about doing good. He didn't work miracles all the time. He did not do great things but occasionally, but He did do good constantly. And so I don't ask to work miracles, but I do ask to do good all the time. So I dedicate your lives to the life of Jesus."

"In estimating the forces with which you will work, those teachings that you will teach, look at the forces Jesus used, follow the teachings that He did and the things that He did."

"Jesus believed that it is good to do good, that the Heavenly Father could be trusted and that other men were His Father's children strayed away from home and He believed that He should bring them back. He believed that He could change that shifting, swerving soul and steady it, and transform His object."

"Study what Jesus believed, what He did and what He tried to do. He had that great motive. It dominated His methods. He based His life with that which He desired to do and it was good. We must think and do things, not in the small, but in the large and the broad. We must follow the life of Christ and His philosophy. Because He was and is the factor in the production of good."

Adopt Resolutions.
Previous to the address of Bishop McDowell, several resolutions were read and adopted. The resolutions especially thanked the board of Sunday schools for the services of Rev. Harry C. Wilson, Rev. James V. Thompson, Rev. William S. Bovard, Rev. J. M. Aven, Rev. Kirk W. Robbins and Rev. John G. Benson. Resolutions were also adopted thanking the committee in charge of the program, the local people who have entertained the delegates and the officials of the Methodist Memorial church.

The evening session opened with a short organ recital by George E. Williams of this city. This was followed by several fine song selections by the men's chorus of 40 voices from the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church of Elkhart.

Three addresses were delivered during the afternoon by Rev. Harry C. Wilson on "Missions and the Sunday School," Rev. William S. Bovard of Chicago on "Men and Evangelism," and Rev. James V. Thompson on "The Teen Age and the Sunday School." At 5:45 a splendid banquet was served.

STEREOPTICON PICTURES TO ILLUSTRATE SERMONS

Meetings are in progress at the old M. E. church, corner Mill and Lincoln ways, west. Tonight's subject is "The Reformation." The workers are using the picture machine every night, which makes the meetings more interesting and instructive. No money is withheld to make the meetings all they should be. The workers believe that they have a message for all people and therefore are giving their lives to the work. They invite minister and lay-member of all the churches to come and study the bible together. Mr. Lauda said today that if he knew that he was wrong in one doctrine that he was preaching he would the moment that he found it out acknowledge it publicly and never preach it again. Mr. Lauda stated that he was not in the work for the money, for he receives not a common wage, but for the good of all men and to prepare all for a future world.

STRAY BULLET HITS MAN EMPLOYED AT BREWERY

Jacob Klaer, 231 E. Ninth st., who is employed as night watchman at the Kamm & Schellinger brewery, was mysteriously shot in the right shoulder early Tuesday evening while walking between the K. & S. premises and the outside yard where some men were employed on an excavation. Although a physician was immediately summoned, and probed for the bullet, it had not been located up till a late hour Tuesday night. Klaer was removed to his home, where he is resting easily.

It is thought that the shot was discharged from a gun in the hands of some youthful hunter who frequents an island behind the brewery in search of game. The police will investigate the matter.

AVIATOR ENGAGED FOR THE NORTHSIDE FAIR

Two Flights Daily—Great Rush of Entries for Various Sections.

Interest is growing apace in the north side country fair to be held Oct. 6, 7, 8, 9. The committee is meeting daily and is doing good work in perfecting arrangements for the event. At its meeting Tuesday night it was decided to engage Frank Kestory, a Chicago aviator, who will give two flights daily during the fair. There will be one shortly after the noon hour so that the factory hands may have an opportunity of seeing it, and the other will be given around 5 o'clock. This is only one of the many stellar attractions that will be offered to the fair visitors. The fair grounds are now being arranged for and will be announced in the course of a day or so.

The entries in the different classes of live stock are coming in to the secretary, James L. Kennedy, by the scores, and the original arrangements for housing them have already had to be extended considerably. More space will be necessary than last year, but the committee is equal to the task of providing space for all the entries that may be received. The poultry section will be one of the interesting exhibits of the fair. The entries, it is said, even at this date far surpass any feature of the fair ever held in this part of the state.

The merchants of Mishawaka and South Bend are responding most generously to the committee's solicitation for funds to carry the fair to a successful issue. Nearly $1,000 in cash has already been received or promised, besides many hundreds of dollars in prizes of various kind.

The contest for queen of the fair is being warm and is creating much interest throughout the city. Up till Monday night Miss Margaret Goeller topped the list of contestants with 1,564 votes, Miss Vivian Smith being second with 1,027.

LOVE SICK FOREIGNER TRIES SUICIDE BY NOOSE

Frank Biell, Polish, residing at 202 E. Broadway, was desperate Tuesday night, or so he told Judge Feis in the city police court Wednesday morning. He was also in love and tired of life because his sweetheart was receiving the attentions of another, and he wouldn't play second fiddle, so late Tuesday night he decided to put a grand finale to the whole affair and leave this earthly world.

Securing a strong rope he tied one end around the post of his bed and the other tightly around his neck. This comprised the first part of the procedure. The second part required nerve and thought. He was stumped; he couldn't jump; how should he do it? At last he figured it out. He lay back and rolled, and of course, rolled off the bed, but it didn't work excepting to give him severe bumps when he struck the floor. That was all. He tried again and again and he rolled and rolled and bumped and bumped the floor and incidentally woke up the family, who notified the police. When they arrived he was still attempting to perform his dastardly deed. He was taken in hand by the patrolman and the rope cut. At the station a charge of intoxication was preferred against him, to which he pleaded guilty Wednesday morning and was given a suspended fine of $1 and costs and good advice on the foolhardiness of suicide. The case of Mike Ludowski against Edward Harris of this city was continued several days. Harris is charged with running down Ludowski several days ago in the vicinity of the Logan st. bridge with his machine. Ludowski was riding a bicycle and claims he was thrown several feet and severely injured. Harris, it is alleged, drove on by without stopping to ascertain the results of the accident.

During the ceremony Mrs. E. J. Luther rendered music. The bride was attired in a green traveling suit with hat to match.

A wedding breakfast was served. Covers were laid for 25 guests. The interior of the Schuster home was profusely decorated with ferns, palms and cut flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Protsman left on their honeymoon, which they will spend in Toledo, O., Detroit, Mich., and Chicago. Upon their return they will take up their residence at 424 Lincoln way W.

Mr. Protsman is employed as salesman in the Beiger Furniture Co.
